

2023 Rugby World Cup

The 6 nations championship is one of many events in the international Rugby Union. It is an annual competition between six European sides: England, France, Ireland, Italy, Scotland and Wales. The 2023 Rugby World Cup, the 10th to be held, will be contested in France. The selection of France was a surprise announcement, after an independent evaluation had recommended South Africa be nominated as hosts. France have previously hosted the event in 1991 and 2007.

ICC World Cup of Cricket

The International Cricket Council (ICC) Cricket World Cup is the major international championship of one-day cricket, and the world's fourth-largest sporting event. The event is contested by all Test-playing nations plus some qualifiers. (see about the T20 World Cup)

The inaugural championship was held in 1975, and the event has been held approximately every four years since (see list of hosts).

The last Cricket World Cup was held in England and Wales in 2019. The next, in 2023, will be hosted by India.

Alpine Skiing World Championships

The first world championships in alpine skiing were held in 1931. Initially there was an event every year, but now it is held every two years.

The 47th FIS Alpine World Ski Championships are taking place from 6 to 19 February 2023 in two neighboring locations in the French Alps, Courchevel and Méribel.

The same two towns already hosted parts of the 1992 Winter Olympic Games.[2] In Courchevel, ski jumping and the Nordic combination took place, and Méribel was the location for the women's alpine skiing.

Super Bowl 2023

The 2023 Bowl LVII will be the 57th Super Bowl in American football. The game is scheduled to be played at State Farm Stadium, Glendale, Arizona. The game will be played on Feb 12, 2023.
